DECEMBER 2014

Dean's Message

I am something of a curmudgeon having grown up in social world that died long ago. It was much more tidy and well-ordered society than today. It was a world that did not think of Halloween till mid October, Thanksgiving until after Halloween, and the Christmas excitement didn't start till Thanksgiving was a fading memory. There were no Christmas Carols in November and all Christmas trees remained up and glowing well into the New Year. Yet some blurring of seasonal themes may be a good thing.

Though Christmas shopping frenzy may intrude on Thanksgiving, the idea of gift giving should be without a season. Since becoming dean, I have been very much thinking of guild membership as a truly great gift. I encourage you to take a moment and think of the organist/music director down the road or in the next town who is not a member. Make a mental note and make a personal commitment to visit them. When you do tell them that no other group is truly dedicated to keeping their art alive, to see that there will be someone to tickle the keys and help people sing when they are no longer there. If they love what they do there is no better way to pass on the joy to another than to join the guild. Tell them of our chapter's commitment to the young through events like Pedals, Pipes, & Pizza, and our desire to host a Pipe Organ Encounter for teens in the future.

Tell them of our collegial help to one another and our programs geared to help each and every one of us improve in some way. Tell them that regardless of background the guild is there for them. It is a place where the lofty and the meek meet, support and encourage each other. Tell them it really is the place for them to be.

So be like Santa. Go make a list, check it twice, and do something nice. Sometime before spring go say hello. Your invitation can open the door for someone today or tomorrow, but the door needs to be open for someone to come in.

Finally, though Thanksgiving Day is past, the season for giving thanks and appreciation is not. As guild members we need to be thankful for all who have help nurture and promote our association. We should be very grateful to our past dean, Donald Hooton; sub dean, Quintin Faulkner, Secretary, Charles Marshall, and retiring board members, Elizabeth Dawson, Lori Bourret, & John Karalekas. Every officer, chairperson, and volunteer have full and busy lives from which they carve out personal time and space to serve you, the guild, and our love of organ & choral music. Know that they did it for you and the music we love.
